

Stargate Auction This Weekend

POSTED BY KIMBERLY LYNN WORKMAN ON SEPTEMBER - 24 - 2010

The Propworx Official Stargate Prop and Costume Auction is happening this weekend. With over 800 pieces from your favorite Stargate episodes and characters, I'm sure fans will be bidding wildly in the coming days.

The live auction is taking place at the Science Fiction Museum in Seattle, Washington. Saturday, starting at 9AM PST, 451 items from the shows will be going up for auction. Pieces include Todd the Wraith's costume, Jonas Quinn's ring, and a segment of the gateroom on Atlantis. On Sunday, the fun will again begin at 9AM PST when 400 more pieces will go up for bid; including Weir's urn, a Wraith rifle, and a Puddle Jumper Main Cabin Chair. Bidders can either be present in Seattle or bid online at www.propworx.com. Fans may remember that Propworx has also been periodically auctioning off memorabilia on Ebay as well. These live auctions are the first in a series of two that will take place, the final one being in 2011.

So, what are you planning on bidding on? I see that they're auctioning off the portrait from "Harmony" and I've got to say it's pretty tempting. I hope to see my fellow Stargate fans bidding. Take home a piece of science fiction history!

Photo Credit: MGM Television